v.

BEST BUY CO., INC., and BEST BUY
STORES, L.P.

Defendant.

Case No. C 05-05056 PJH (MEJ)

[Hon. Phyllis J. Hamilton]

STIPULATION AND [PROPOSED] ORDER
REGARDING PRESERVATION OF DOCUMENTS AND ELECTRONIC MEDIA

Action filed: December 8, 2005

1. WHEREAS, the parties have engaged in substantial meet and confer efforts
2 regarding Best Buy's ongoing preservation of documents and media, and have agreed that Best
3 Buy can scale back certain duplicative and/or unnecessary preservation efforts, as more fully
4 detailed herein;

6 44 Back-Up Tapes

7. WHEREAS, on or about October, 2006, in the course of this litigation, Best Buy
8 copied 44 back-up tapes (hereinafter "44 back-up tapes") of electronic media that comprises over
9 18 terabytes of materials;

10. WHEREAS, Best Buy continues to store this information at significant cost;

11. WHEREAS, exact copies of the 44 back-up tapes were subsequently provided to 12 Best Buy's document management vendor, Kroll, who has retained custody thereof;

13. WHEREAS, it is therefore unnecessary and wasteful for Best Buy to continue
14 storing the 44 back-up tapes;

15

16 Ongoing Preservation of Electronic Media

17. WHEREAS, in the course of discovery, Best Buy has continuously backed up its 18 emails systems, at the cost of $2,000 per day;

19. WHEREAS, Best Buy has implemented a document retention system (hereinafter 20 "RISS") that automatically preserves electronic media for corporate personnel enrolled in the 21 RISS system; WHEREAS, all custodians identified to date as having potentially relevant
22 information in this litigation have been enrolled in the RISS system; WHEREAS, Best Buy shall 23 comply with its legal obligations to enroll any additional custodians who may have potentially 24 relevant information;

25. WHEREAS, RISS automatically backs up email and stores it into an archiving
26 database;

9. WHEREAS, RISS backs up electronic media consisting of common documents (such as .txt, .pdf, .doc, and .ppt) contained either in groupshare drives (“V-Drive”), personal directories or as attachments to emails;

10. WHEREAS, for personal directories, all documents that were not modified in the prior 30 days are archived on a weekly basis;

11. WHEREAS, for groupshare V-Drives, all documents that were not modified within the prior 18 months are archived on a monthly basis;

12. WHEREAS a litigation hold has been and remains in place for all custodians identified as having potentially relevant information in this litigation;

13. WHEREAS, the RISS archive system is more economical than the current back-up efforts:

14. WHEREAS the RISS archive system is also more efficient than the 44 back-up tapes because the archives are searchable;

15. WHEREAS, it is therefore unnecessary and wasteful to continue backing up information, other than through the RISS archive system for custodians identified by Plaintiffs, as set forth above:

Best Buy's Document Preservation Policy

16. WHEREAS, Best Buy will continue to observe its internal document retention policy as set forth in the attached Exhibit "A".

Personnel Files and Store Level Information

17. WHEREAS, during the course of discovery, Best Buy has placed a litigation hold on hard copy documents from its retail stores:

18. WHEREAS, Best Buy's document destruction policy calls for destruction of personnel files within 7 years after an employee leaves Best Buy:

19. WHEREAS, the putative class period in this case commenced on January 1, 2001;

20. WHEREAS, notwithstanding its document destruction policy, Best Buy will continue to preserve hard copy documents from its retail stores going back to January 1, 2001, but may dispose of all files prior to that date.

Use of Information From 44 Back-Up Tapes

21. WHEREAS, if Best Buy conducts any search of the 44 back-up tapes, it will immediately inform Plaintiffs' counsel that it has searched the back-up tapes. Specifically, Best Buy will identify what searches were run and whether those searches located responsive documents. Nothing in this paragraph will be deemed to waive Best Buy's work product privilege. In response Plaintiffs may request that additional searches be performed on the back up tape material. If Best Buy locates responsive documents as a result of any search of the back-up tape material, it will immediately produce said documents, as well as inform Plaintiffs' counsel of the searches used in locating said documents.

THEREFORE, the parties hereby stipulate to the following, and request that the Court so order:

44 Back-Up Tapes

1. Best Buy may dispose of the 44 back-up tapes as of the date this Stipulation and [Proposed] Order is signed by the Court;

Ongoing Preservation of Electronic Media

2. Except as provided for pursuant to Best Buy's RISS system described above, Best Buy may dispose of additional tapes backing up its email systems and shall have no further obligation to continue generating back up tapes;

Best Buy's Document Preservation Policy

3. Best Buy will continue to observe its internal document retention policy as set forth in the attached Exhibit "A", except for hard copy documents from its retail stores as set forth in Paragraph 4, infra;

Personnel Files and Store Level Information

4. Notwithstanding Best Buy's document destruction policy, Best Buy will continue to preserve personnel files from its retail stores going back to January 1, 2001. All other retail store documents may be destroyed in accordance with the policies set forth in Exhibit "A"; and

Use of Information From 44 Back-Up Tapes

5. If Best Buy conducts any search of the 44 back-up tapes, it will immediately inform Plaintiffs' counsel that it has searched the back-up tapes. Specifically, Best Buy will identify what searches were run and whether those searches located responsive documents. Nothing in this paragraph will be deemed to waive Best Buy's work product privilege. In response Plaintiffs may request that additional searches be performed on the back up tape material. If Best Buy locates responsive documents as a result of any search of the back-up tape material, it will immediately produce said documents, as well as inform Plaintiffs' counsel of the searches used in locating said documents.

- The Record Retention Policy outlines specific policies regarding the storage and retention of various paperwork.
- Stores generate an immense amount of paper records each month, some of which are not needed in the store. Other records must be stored for legal reasons.
- Storing records in a standard method allows the store to easily locate documents and it prevents waste of valuable storage space.
- Best Buy's record retention policy only includes guidelines for documents that stores are required to keep. Many other documents that are used in the store may not be included in the policy; this indicates that the store is not required to keep those documents on file.
- Documents which contain customer information or confidential Best Buy information must be shredded.

Storage/Disposal

- In some cases, stores need to transfer documents from short-term storage areas (such as hanging files) to long-term storage areas (such as banker's boxes). When necessary to move documents to long-term storage, ensure the boxes are accessible and clearly labeled with contents, dates of records, and retention period (disposal date).
 Note: Documents must be easily accessible for three months before they can be transferred to long-term storage. During these three months, the documents must be accessible for store assessments and research purposes.
- Label all files with the proper retention guideline. This allows file users to purge expired paperwork on a regular basis.
- Dispose of confidential documents or documents containing any customer information in a discreet, confidential manner. Use the locked bins provided by the document destruction contractor. The pickup and destruction of materials is scheduled at four-, six-, or eight-week intervals, depending on the volume of materials requiring destruction. If a pickup is required outside the store's regular schedule, contact the document destruction contractor at 877-450-6287, and a pickup will be scheduled within 48 hours.
